Laurie,

Many thanks for this. A lot of it will be very useful if we do need/want to reply to the Council's latest letter. At the moment, I am still of the view that we should not respond at all until we know whether they are pulling the funding.

Perhaps it would be better to formulate a 'plan of action' once DCC has clarified the funding position and we have had a consultation with Craig Thomson. Some suggested action points:

1. Complaint to DCC/ Public Services Ombudsman
2. Freedom of Information request to DCC
3. What information (if any) should be disclosed to DCC (Disclosure Scotland records, internal investigation findings, Scotvec qualifications, details of external agencies contacted, membership of advisory committee, employment/recruitment records)
4. Statement to be released to media and/or other funders.
5. Legal remedies - depending on Craig Thomson's opinion.

I would be grateful for your thoughts.

Regards,

Laura

hi laura

had a few more thought about DCC. in particular the way they are still implying the ex volunteer is some sort of a danger to kids when actually though he might have broken our rules, in reality he baby sat for the parents and that is not an offence.
see attached for my thoughts
